Scholars' Wall Completed

The Duke Anthony Whitmore and Henry Lewis Gates, Jr. Academic Achievement Wall was constructed this past spring in memory of deceased faculty member and Interim President Duke Anthony "Tony" Whitmore and in honor of Dr. Henry "Skip" Lewis Gates, Jr., Professor and Chair of Harvard University's Department of Afro-American Studies. The three-sectioned wall will honor outstanding academic achievements by former faculty members, alumni, and graduating students.

Dr. Joseph Gratto, who served as President of Potomac State College from 1987-1994, observes the center wall.

Hovis to Receive Distinguished Service Award

Patricia Arnold Hovis, former president, secretary, and treasurer of the Alumni Association at Potomac State College of WVU, has been selected to receive the 2002 Distinguished Service Award.

After graduating from Elk Garden High School in 1950, Hovis attended Potomac State College and graduated with a degree in secretarial science in 1952.

Hovis served in the district office of the West Virginia Extension Service as program assistant and office manager from 1964 until her retirement in 1997. She also worked for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission in the Naval Reactors Branch in Washington, D.C.

Hovis has been extremely active

Letter from the President...

It seems like only a short time ago we said goodbye to our graduates, yet students will be returning to school on Friday, August 16. As we prepare for the fall semester, I am inviting the college community to a breakfast on Friday, August 16, from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. in the Potomac Café. This will provide us the opportunity to see each other, talk about summer events and prepare for the arrival of students that day.

Individual departments will be contacting you regarding opening meetings respectfully. It is my intention to continue with the coffee hours, but to expand them to also include a question and answer session to allow for all to ask questions about occurrences in the PSC Community.

Our first coffee hour is scheduled for Friday, August 23, from 8-9 a.m. in the Mary F. Shipper Library. I will begin Q&A around 8:15 a.m. Additional coffee hour dates and times will be posted throughout the campus via memo, e-mail and the Catamount Spirit.

I am looking forward to seeing all of you this fall.

Data Looks Good For Fall Enrollment

"Potomac State College has experienced a significant increase in the number of admitted students for Fall 2002, which should translate into some positive news," says Beth Little, Director of Enrollment Services.

Last year, Potomac State experienced the highest percentage increase in enrollment of any state college or university in West Virginia. The climb began with the 2001 enrollment when PSC had a 13% increase from the previous year.

According to Little, "Our data looks promising for another good year of enrollment. While it's unlikely that we'll continue to see big increases like last fall, we're optimistic that enrollment will stabilize and we'll continue to experience moderate increases."

As of the end of July, residence halls were almost at full capacity and one hundred percent occupancy is projected for the fall.

"The campus community has continued to work very hard this year to maintain our enrollment progress, and I think students and parents continue to see the value of starting their successful educational journey at Potomac State College," stated Little.

PSC Grad Earns Order of Augusta Honors at WVU

Andrea G. Peer, a 2002 graduate of West Virginia University (WVU), was conferred the Order of Augusta during the Weekend of Honors convocation ceremonies.

The Order of Augusta was bestowed upon the University's top eight students and is WVU's most prestigious student honor.

Peer earned her master's degree in elementary education and her bachelor's degree in multi-disciplinary studies from WVU. She also received an associate of arts degree in elementary education from Potomac State College of WVU.

Throughout her college career, Peer maintained a 4.0 GPA and is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Golden Key, Mortar Board and the National Society of Collegiate Scholars. She was the recipient of the Underwood-Smith Teacher Education Scholarship, the Joseph M. Stanislawczyk Memorial Scholarship, the G. Belmont Berry Leadership Scholarship and the Lulu May Heskestad Scholarship.

Peer, the daughter of Karen Peer of Ft. Ashby, WV, is a graduate of Frankfort High School.

WVU President David C. Hardesty, Jr. presented Andrea Peer, former PSC graduate, with the Order of Augusta Medallion.

Campus Community Saddened to Lose Prof. Don Starcher

Don Starcher, Professor of Horticulture and Unit Coordinator of Agriculture at Potomac State College of West Virginia University, died on Tuesday, August 6, 2002, at his residence.

Born on July 10, 1950, in Charleston, WV, he was the son of Donald R. and JoAnn (Furby) Starcher of Charleston.

Surviving besides his parents are his wife of 29 years, Nancy M. Fairall Starcher, his son Stephen E. Starcher of Keyser, and his daughter Marie A. Selby.

The family has requested that any memorial contributions be made to the Ken Malone Agriculture Scholarship Fund of Potomac State College of WVU. Please make checks payable to WVU Foundation, Inc./PSC. Address: WVU Foundation, Inc., 1 Waterfront Place, P.O. Box 1650, Morgantown, WV 26507-1650.

Four Retirees, 25-Year Employee Honored

The Potomac State College Social Club held its annual banquet in the spring to honor four retiring faculty members and one staff employee for 25 years of service to the college. Richard A. Davis, Professor of Music, served Potomac State for 39 years, while Dr. Ruth Ann Davis, Professor of Biology, was with the college for 18 years. William C. Edel, Professor of Economics, began his career 32 years ago, and Dr. Trevor A. Owen, Professor of English served the college for 27 years. Also being honored was Debra Wilson, Senior Administrative Secretary, for 25 years of service. Pictured above left to right: Wilson, Davis, Edel and Owen.

Words From the Alumni President

Dear Fellow Alumni,

I am writing this letter on July 1, and in the heat, it is difficult to think that in just a few months we will be into fall and the numerous activities associated with the season. Hopefully, at the top of everyone's list is attendance at Potomac States' Homecoming on October 12. We certainly look forward to renewing old acquaintances, and visiting the PSC campus. Again, there will be special activities for the 50th, 25th, and 10-year anniversary classes, the Friday night "gathering," campus tours, plus a golf outing on Saturday morning coordinated by Skip Delligatti '58 and Joe Bundy '57.

As always, of special interest will be the banquet on Saturday night, and the presentation of the Alumni Achievement and the Distinguished Service Awards. I would remind you that anyone can nominate candidates for the two awards. Honorees are chosen by a special committee consisting of alumni, PSC faculty and staff.

As I mentioned in my previous letter, the Alumni Board continues to struggle along on a meager budget. For instance, the mailing of this newsletter costs approximately $5,000. For the past two years the College has agreed to pay half of the cost.

Jennings Stickley

However, due to financial constraints, this may not be the case in the future. We are looking at the possibility of a condensed newsletter with more detailed information on the PSC Web site that is currently under redesign. However, we still need financial support and continue to solicit your donations. We have discussed the prospect of corporate sponsorship for our newsletter, and would welcome the opportunity for discussions if there is anyone so inclined.

Please forward any contribution to the PSC Alumni Office, Keyser, WV 26726.

Have a good summer and I'll see you on October 12.

Jennings R. Stickley

Clem, Stewart, Whipp Honored for Alumni Achievements

Donald L. Clem has been selected to receive the Alumni Achievement Award for 2002.

Clem earned an associate of arts degree in pre-business from Potomac State College in 1959, a B.S. from WVU, and is also a graduate of Harvard University's Advanced Management Program.

Clem is a retired vice president of Westvaco Corporation where he worked for 33 years. During that time he served as general manager of the Westvaco Mills in Tyrone and Williamsburg, PA; manager of the Edgemate Division; and he also served as division sales and marketing manager. He was elected a corporate officer in 1990. Throughout his career, Clem was considered a leader in his field. He served in many advisory capacities to the printing, publishing, and paper industries. Most notably, he was a paper industry representative to The Conference Board in New York City.

Clem and his wife of 41 years, the former Terri Beal, also of Keyser, are the parents of four grown children and the grandparents of four children.

Guy H. Stewart

Guy H. Stewart, a native of Keyser and current resident of Morgantown, is also the recipient of the 2002 Alumni Achievement Award.

After graduating from Keyser High School, Stewart went on to earn his B.S.J. degree in journalism from WVU in 1948, and earned his M.A. degree in history from WVU the following year. He received his Ph.D in history from the University of Illinois in 1957.

Stewart has had extensive experience working in various aspects of the journalism spectrum. He has served as assistant extension editor and as assistant university editor at WVU. He is a former owner of a radio station and presently works as advertising/promotion consultant for Pat Stewart Realtors.

Stewart, a member of the Wesley United Methodist Church, is married to Patricia A. Stewart, and they are the parents of three children.

Roy H. Whipp, a native of Keyser, WV and current resident of Windermere, FL, has also been selected to receive the Alumni Achievement Award for 2002.

Roy H. Whipp

Whipp, a 1967 graduate of Potomac State College went on to receive a B.S. degree in Chemical Engineering at WVU with high honors. He received recognition in Phi Lambda Upsilon (Ch.E.), Omega Chi Epsilon (Chem.), and Tau Beta Phi.

He began his extensive career as an engineer in a process group and later served as a group manager where he assisted in process design, hazards evaluation, and troubleshooting for the EXXON Research and Engineering Company from 1970-1979. He then went on to be technical manager, plant manager, and the technical advisor to the general manager at Fior de Venezuela from 1979-1986.

From 1986 to 1991, Whipp served as a private consultant and both project and construction managers on the Guayana Project at Sivena (Venezuela). He also served as consultant at Orinoco Iron from 1991-1996 and project director from 1996 to the present.

Whipp, current president of Whipp Technology Inc., is also the developer for direct reduction and steelmaking processes, including the development of a least cost scrap optimization model called the Scrap OptiMiser.

Whipp holds several copyrights, numerous patents and is the author of many published technical articles.

Whipp is married to Angelica Roux of Germany.

A Golden Moment

"It was a Golden Moment for everyone," stated writer Mike Mathews in a Cumberland Times-News article regarding the dedication of the new baseball field, Golden Park. Despite strong winds and predictions of rain, crowds showed up for the dedication and to watch the Potomac State Catamounts play their first game on the new baseball field. Gerry Golden and his wife, Edna, owners of Womex Inc., an excavation company located in Dillsburg, PA, donated time and resources, comparable to $250,000 in the construction of the new field. The Golden's son, Bryan, was a catcher on the 1999 and 2000 PSC teams. After leaving Potomac State, Bryan went on to play professional ball with the Chicago Cubs organization for two years.

Potomac State College's New Ag Coordinator Excited About Program's Future... Ag Program Awarded $200,000 from WV Legislature

By JON GILLOOLY, Tribune Staff Writer; Reprinted with permission by The Mineral Daily News-Tribune

Those in doubt over the future of agriculture at Potomac State College may breathe easier, according to Tom Brand, Jr., the new Interim Coordinator for Agriculture, as the institution will continue to offer its Agriculture Program to future students.

The college, along with the WVU Davis School of Agriculture, Forestry, and Consumer Sciences, is currently reviewing ways to update and integrate new technologies into the program. The reason for these changes, Brand said, is to ensure that future students are fully prepared to assist in the agricultural growth, not only in the state and nation, but throughout the world.

Some of the state's key economic growth opportunities identified, he said, are in poultry production, aquaculture, and forest technology.

"These findings have led us to analyze the existing curriculums to determine what adjustments are needed to meet these growing opportunities."

To help implement these adjustments, a newly created advisory board of 15 is about to be formed. Board members will be experts in their fields — "It will be a Who's Who in forestry and agriculture in the state," remarked Mary Rittling, president of PSC — and will hopefully include representatives from Pilgrim's Pride, Allegany Wood Products, MeadWestvaco, the Department of Agriculture, and the head of the Cattlemen's Association, among others. Brand will take the ideas generated by the board to update the current facilities.

"Having an advisory board to a school is not uncommon in higher education," Rittling said.

Potomac State is continuing its Ag Living and Learning Environment, a program offering agriculture students the chance to live together. The only change is to move them from Reynolds Hall to two floors in Friend Hall for reasons of space.

As for Sunday's rally against the alleged sale of the lower farm, "It is not for sale, nor has it been for sale since PSC purchased it ten years ago," Brand said. "We value our farmland as an integral instructional resource. However, all farmland, facilities, and equipment are being evaluated to determine the best use to more efficiently support the Agriculture and Forestry programs. Already the need has been identified for new structures on both the upper and lower farms. A new free-stall barn was completed this past winter and existent buildings are undergoing repair on the upper farm. A new barn and treatment lagoon are nearing completion on the lower farm."

The greenhouse operation will also continue to be offered, he said.

"While the greenhouse is being prepared to raise plants for use on campus, the facility is being evaluated to determine its best educational use. Suggestions have included using part of the greenhouse for a small aquaculture or hydroponics project."

These changes have the support of WVU, the WV Legislature, and the PSC administration — David Hardesty, president of WVU; Cameron Hackney, Dean of WVU Davis School of Agriculture, Forestry, and Consumer Sciences; Delegate Jerry Mezzatesta, D-Hampshire; Delegate Harold Michael, D-Hardy; and Rittling are all in agreement and supportive of the changes, Brand said. So much so that the Legislature awarded $200,000 to the PSC's Ag Program recently.

"If I can't pull this off with all the tools I've been handed I better quit," Brand said with a smile.

Tom Brand, Jr., Interim Coordinator for Agriculture at PSC explains to President Mary Rittling (L), and Rene Trezise, director of marketing & communications (R) the purpose of two new structures currently being built on the college's lower farm (off Rt. 220 north). The structure behind the three is a feeding area for the cattle, installed with a concrete floor which allows manure to be moved to the building on the left, a manure holding area. This prevents the manure from bleeding into the water supply and spreading contamination, Brand said.

Joe Massey

Massey Named New Farm Manager

Joe Massey was recently named the new farm manager of Potomac State College of West Virginia University.

He is a native of Alderson, WV, having earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Animal Veterinary Science in 1996 and his master's degree in Animal Science with an emphasis in Nutrition in 2002 from WVU.

Most recently, Massey served as chief animal control officer in Monongalia County, WV, for the past year while also working as a graduate assistant for the WVU Department of Animal Science from 1999 through 2001.

Massey served as an agricultural extension agent with the North Carolina Cooperative Extension Service North Carolina State University, in Statesville, NC, from 1996 to 1999. While in this position he developed a comprehensive education and research program for agricultural producers in poultry and tobacco production. Compost and nutrient management were of special note in his programming activities.

From 1987 to 1992, he worked and managed the British United Turkeys of America farm in Lewisburg, WV.

WVU Looks to the Future

Architect's rendition of New Information Technology Center.

Making Vision A Reality

Recently, the Potomac State College Board of Advisors, the WVU Board of Governor's and the West Virginia Higher Education Policy Commission approved Potomac State College's master plan. At the heart of this plan is a new Information Technology Center. This Center would include an extensive renovation of the existing library, in addition to an expansion that would extend to Science Hall.

This facility has the potential to make a dramatic contribution to the students of Potomac State College and the state of West Virginia by bringing in technological resources not otherwise available to the area. President Rittling describes the project by stating, "This project can be a beacon of hope and light to students, faculty, staff and the surrounding community."

In summary, the Information Technology Center will offer the technological, educational, economic development and learning resources necessary to make a significant difference in the Potomac Highlands, West Virginia and beyond.

The Cornerstone for the Next Generation

Alumni and friends are already offering support to show that they understand the impact the Technology Center will have. There are many ways you, too, might consider participating. Outright gifts such as cash and securities, in addition to planned gifts like annuities and bequests are just several examples of how you might be able to support this project.

Additionally, a variety of naming opportunities are available for those who would like to leave a lasting legacy to the College. You might even want to remember a loved one who had special ties to Potomac State College.

Additionally, a gift to the Center, before the end of 2003, will count toward Potomac State College's Building Greatness Campaign goal. If you would like to learn more about making a gift to Potomac State College, please contact Joy Eggleston at (304) 284-4015.

Joy S. Eggleston

Joy S. Eggleston is Assistant Director of Constituency Development for the WVU Foundation and acts as the lead Development Officer for Potomac State College.

Tom Brand Named Interim Agriculture Coordinator

"My goal is to get people beating down our door to hire our Agriculture and Forestry students," says Tom Brand, Jr., who recently joined the administration of Potomac State College of West Virginia University as the new Interim Coordinator for Agriculture.

In this position he will implement the new five-pronged agricultural action plan in cooperation with West Virginia University's Davis School of Agriculture. The plan addresses organization and management, the updating of the agricultural and forestry programs, the reorganization of farm operations, and expansion of the agricultural curriculum to include aquaculture, bio-security, poultry production and more. A strong emphasis will be incorporating modern technology into the program.

Brand will also organize an Agricultural and Forestry Advisory Committee representing all major agriculture- and forestry-related interests in the state that will act as consultants and guide the college in its efforts to keep its curriculums current.

Brand is originally from Morgantown, WV, having earned his bachelor's degree in Agricultural Engineering from West Virginia University. He later returned to the University for graduate studies in Groundwater Hydrology.

He brings to this position 38 years experience in agriculture, wildlife, forestry and the environment having most recently served as Director of Regulatory and Environmental Affairs for the West Virginia Department of Agriculture (WVDA).
